REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

Examiner acknowledges a submission of the amendment and arguments filed on December 29, 2004. Claim 10 is deleted; Claims 1, 2, and 7 - 9 are amended.

Amendment and arguments have overcome rejections under 103(a).

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

An amended independent Claim 1 discloses, inter alia, the capacitive element connected to the plurality of electromagnetic loads in common. The closest reference for the claim is Ricco et al., which discloses some elements of the claim including an electromagnetic load drive circuit having a DC power supply and a capacitive element as a power source feeding the power to the inductive element at the time of operating the load and recovering energy accumulated in the inductive element; the energy being recovered by the capacitive element at the time when the operation of the electromagnetic load is stopped. It further discloses control unit controlling the switching means to select the first state when the electromagnetic load is in operation so that the electric power is fed to the inductive element and the power source that are connected in series, and to select the second state when the operation of the electromagnetic load is stopped. It further discloses the first switching means connecting the capacitive element to the power source. However, it does not disclose a single capacitive element being connected to the plurality of electromagnetic loads in common.

Art Unit: 2836

The other independent Claims 2 and 3, inter alia, recite limitations of the assisting capacitive element, which is being charged in the second state. Such limitations were not found in the collected prior art of the record.

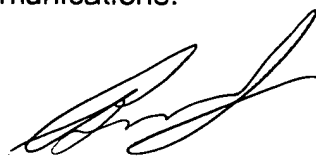

The independent Claim 7 discloses, inter alia, second switching device turning on and off at the time of the energy recovery by the capacitive element. Such limitation was not found in the collected prior art of the record.

Allowability resides, at least in part, in the above-described limitations, which has not been disclosed in the Prior Art in a search.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
